AGENDA FESTIVAL

Gyles Brandreth makes return to Agenda Festival

Renowned author and broadcaster Gyles Brandreth, keynote speaker at the inaugural Agenda Festival in 2023, is making a return to this year's event.

Being held at the Hurlingham Club in London on Monday, May 20, Agenda is the platform for tapping into the good life and making the most out of post-retirement.

A host of celebrities and experts have been lined up to share their experiences and enthusiasm across a day of talks and entertainment.

Specialists from the worlds of travel, lifestyle and culture are among speakers confirmed, alongside leaders in the healthcare, wealth management, legal and property sectors.

Organiser (David Wellesley Wesley, Founder), part of the team behind the long-established Independent Schools Show, said: "We have created the Agenda Festival for a discerning, time-rich audience on how to make life enjoyable as well as stress-free.

"A spirited programme of amusing, irreverent and informative talks, featuring well known faces, such as Gyles, will be followed by a picnic lunch and sparkling wine.

"There will also be plenty of time for visitors to discover and discuss a wide selection of practical and cultural opportunities, showcased by a broad range of premium exhibitors."

Brandreth said: "Agenda – surely it stands for Amazing, Great, Energising, New, Delightful and Ageless. What a fantastic day."
